A JAM AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

TROM 2,500 TO 8,000 PERSONS TRY TO CROWD INTO THE ROOMS.

It Was the Third and Last Evening Card Reception, and Was in Honor of the Army and Navy-Men, Women, and Calldren Came Without Invitations, in All Sorts of Attire and with All Borts of Mannerb-A Pushing, Crushing Crowd that Could Not be Controlled-Several Women Narrowly Escaped Serious In Jury, and Many Tollets Were Torn.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 .- The reception at the White House last night in honor of the army and navy was the most crowded and badly arranged entertainment that has been held in Washington for some years, and that is saying a great deal. It was the President and Mrs. Harrison's third and last evening card reception of the season, and apparently the entire population of Washington saw in it their last opportunity for the winter of getting a glimps of high official society. Foreigners and other strangers in Washington have often expressed astonishment at the character of the crowds met with at White House receptions, and after last night's experience their wonder is ant to turn into astonishment, for all previous records as regards big erowds, pushing, jostling, and absence of invitations was beaten out of sight

It is enstomary for the President and his wife to give three eard receptions during the winter, the first in honor of the Diplomatic Corps, the second in honor of the Congress, and the third in honor of the officers of the army and the navy. For these entertainments mely engraved formal invitations are sent out by special mounted messengers, the one card including the invitation for the three evenings. As souvenirs these cards of invita tion are desirable, being most artistic in their way, and bearing at the top in raised gold the motto of the United States. "E Pluribus Unum." Although each invitation is restricted to the recipient and the "members of his ins, aunta, nephews, sons-in-law, visitors, and even the boarders of the households where the cards are received, to put in an appearance at the White House. The cards are sent to all of the official world of Washington, and the personal friends and acquaintances of the President and the members of his family. It is the custom, also, for the members of the of the various departments, none of which ever fail to accept. The list of invited guests. also, includes such strangers in the city as the President and his personal friends see fit to informally ask to attend.

The actual capacity of the White House when all its rooms are thrown open, as they are on reception nights, is not definitely known, but it is cortainly great enough to ac commodate, after a fashion, at least, all persons who are invited. Last night, however, Riterally all Washington sought admission to the White House doors, and among the 2,500 or 3,000 persons present there must have been at least 500 who had no invitation, written verbal, or implied. The hours for these card receptions are fixed at from 9 to 11. ore the former hour. however, the ladies of the receiving party, with their escorts. and the personal friends of the President's household, are admitted by a private entrance, if necessary, but the guests generally are expected to wait outside until fit they get there before that hour. It being the last reception of the season last night, a crowd was expected, but the ushers, doorkeepers, policemen, and other attendants were entirely unprepared for the crowds that swarmed upon them.

and other attendants were entirely unprepared for the crowds that swarmed upon them.

Long before 9 o'clock the crowd of people began to gather, and promptly at that hour the doors were opened and the line began to pour in. Immediately within the glass doors of the highly decorated vestibule the marine band, in full uniform, was playing lively tunes, which served to keep the people outside in a measure good-natured. As the line passed in to the right, it wound in through the narrow passages of the lower floor to the state dining room, which was used as a ladies' dressing room, which was used as a saindies' dressing room, which was used as a saind the sain vestibule, and thence into the Blue Boom, where the President and Mrs. Harrison and the receiving party stood. As the guests paid their respects to the indies of the line they passed on into the great East Room and distributed themselves as best they could. At 2:30 this crowd extended from the Fast Room back through the various reception rooms, dressing rooms, hall, and vestibule out to the portice and down the stone walk through the grounds half way to Pennsylvania avenue. In addition to this great mass of people there was a line of carriages from the White House portico, down through the grounds along Pennsylvania avenue and down Fifteenth street to a point below the main entrance to the Treasury building, a distance of over three blocks. This line of carriages was kept moving by policeman as rapidly as possible and emptied their occuover three blocks. This line of carriages was kept moving by policeman as rapidly as possible and empited their occupants into the pushing crowd on the portico, where they became wedged among the greater mass of people who came on foot. The result was that at 9:30 there was an actual blockade, and strequired almost an hour to move from the end of the line to the outside vestibule of the house. The line was kept moving at a small's pace by policemen stationed at the door. When the inside crowd became absolutely immovable the policemen clasped hands and prevented the outside people from moving a step. At intervals of about lifteen minutes the outside people were pushed ahead and a platon of those without twas permitted to enter.

By 10:30 the interior of the mansion was pecked with a solid mass of people, as was the portico outside, and hundreds of those who gained admission after that hour got no further, and instead of shaking hands with their host and hostess remained tangled up in confusion with the members of the marine band, policemen, hack drivers, and doorkeepers in the outside vestibule. This state of things was due chiefly to two reasons. One is that too many invitations were issued, and the other is that hundreds of people who were not invited took advantage of the fact that cards were not demanded at the door, and came without invitations.

The officers of the army and navy were presuments and the officers of the army and navy were presuments.

other is that audards of people who were not invited took advantage of the fact that cards were not demanded at the door, and came without invitations.

The officers of the army and navy were present in full uniform as the guests of honor. There was a sprinking of diplomats, a fair representation of Congress, of the judiciary and the Executive departments, and many well-known society residents of Washington. Mingled with them were all sorts of people, whom the Fresident must have wondered to soo, because he know they were not invited. Department clerks, messengers, and Government emboyees of all sorts, including many clerks, deerkeepers, and even pages of the two Houses of Congress, boarding-house keepers, shopkeepers, and strangers by the score, all good people in their way, but who certainly had not received invitations, mingled with the throng inside, Many of these people, as well as many of those who were formally invited, came without the trouble of doming evening attire. There were men in frock coats, cutaway coats, and sack coats, and there were hades in boanets. The few foreign diplomats present must have been more than ever astonished at the sight of a well-known Congressman marching down the receiving line with his young children, the oldest not more than 8 years old, accompanying him. They must have wondered to see gentlemen in business suits chatting with ladies in full evening dress, and at the sight of more than 8 years old, accompanying him. They must have wondered to see gentlemen in business suits chatting with ladies in full evening dress, and at the sight of mothers dragging their children about in an almost hopoless effort to keep them from being crahed to death. It must have caused zone astenishment to the Presidential party also when a well-known Congressman came in to pay his respects carrying on his arm a heavy overcast and a siouch hat, while woaring a swallow-tail suit of a good old hand-me-down style.

swallow-tail suit of a good old hand-me-down style.

A distinguished party of New Yorkars, including Mr. Jay Gould and his family, came ever-to Wusshington especially to attend this Beeption. Mr. Gould stood just behind the fine ard at the President's right. At first he looked ured, bored, and unbappy; but as the pashing mass of human beings, in all surts of stilre and with all sorts of manners, were hustled by, he grow interested and seemed after a time to appreciate the situation. It is customary at these receptions for the President and the ladies of the receiving party or request such friends as they happen to see to stand behind the receiving line—the dead line, as it is known in Washington—so that there is always a company of two or three to stand benind the receiving line—"the dead line." as it is known in Washington—so that there is always a company of two or three hundred beonis who do nothing but push toward the front, crane their necks to get a glimpee of the beople going by bow to the dignituries, and make running comments upon their appearance. It is a species of armaement very pleasing to the people behind tile line, but very harassing to those passing in front of it.

Eleveral ladies in the crowd narrowly escaped severe ninury. One or two of them fainted, and many were pushed and pulled about to such an extent that their tollets were disarranged and in many cases their calching form or ruined. Hank counted for nothing, and Senters, Commodores, Generals, Judges, and plain nobodies were all mixed together, and good-naturely made the best of a bad predicament. Many prominent men, who grew tired of waiting outside, where the ladies of their party in creature dress were in constant danger of contracting pneumonia. endeavored by the use of strategy and the presentation of visiting or business cards to gain admittance through side depers and windows. They did not succeed. It was not so much a diainclination of the men on duty to oblige them, as the utter impossibility of finding standing room for them in the surging crowd within. Senator Sewell, a chum of the President, was one of the unfortunates, and it was within a few minutes of it o'clock before he reached the dressing room, and thence the Biue Boom, to greet the receiving party. Several gentlemen who were accompanied with ladies got within the doors by main, only to find that their ladies had been aqueened lack into the throug on the outside. They were obliged to wait, in some cases, half an hour before they were were joined by the blockaded lades. Mrs. Vice-Fresident Morton, who arrived about 9:30, was buffeted about for several minutes before she got into the house, and when, an hour later, the Vice-Fresident desired to leave in order to keep another engagement. It was necessary for him to be assisted out of a window in the vestibule. There was a private ext leading from the foot of the stairway near the East Hoom, but it was for a time impossible for those on the opposite side of the house to reach the corridor from which the ext led, and so they remained choked in the crewd of human beings until some other means of escape was found. Many ladies had their gowns so utterly disarranged that when they reached the firessing room they went no further, but far down and waited for a chance to get out again.

At 11 o'clock, the time for departing, only about one-third of the guests had succeeded in getting out. It is customary at that hour for the President and Mrs. Harrison, preceded by the court officials. Col. Eernst and Lieut. Parkor, and followed by the members of the house and pass on up the private staircase to the private rooms above, where a lunch is served. It was thought f

When her friend Emma entered, the pair chatted for a few minutes rather loudly and nervously. Then Katie whisked her hat from beneath the butcher's block, and the two girls darted eround the corner to Barelay street, where two young men in a carriage were waiting. The driver drove rapidly to were waiting. The driver drove rapidly to Franklin street and the two couples alighted and waiked into the house of the fley. J. Boyd Brady, pastor of the Franklin Street Methodist Church. The clergyman was ready. Miss Schleicher and Mr. Frank Piorson Bend were united in marriage and Miss Mansfield and Harry Occar Winans were bridesmaid and groomsman. The bride gave her age as 18, and the groom said he was 21 years old. After the ceremony the young married couple started toward Market street, saying they were going to Washington.

The groom and his test man are well known throughout the city as abnateur musicians. Mr. Bond is a watch-case engraver, and Mr. Winans is a clerk in the office of the Eric Railway. They occupy their evenings by giving musical entertainments. Last summer they filled an engagement at Coney Island. One day a young woman in bathing there was caught by the undertow and carried beyond the lines. Her screams for help attracted the attention of young Mr. Bond, who was on the beach. He dashed into the surf and rescued the drowning girl, who was Katle Schleicher.

Before meeting Frank Bond, Katle was engaged to a young German. Her father was anxious she should marry him, and strenuously opposed breaking off the match in favor of Mr. Bond. He relused to allow the latter to call on his daughter, but that did not prevent her meeting Bond soveral evenings every week.

A CLAIRVOYANTS DILEMMA.

She Professed to Find Stolen Property for Others, but Could Not Find Her Own. BINGHAMTON, Feb. 9.-Dr. Bishop, a female clairvoyant, who for a long time has done a profitable business in this city, finds herself in an aggravating dilemma. Her specialty has been her alleged power of locating stolen of that kind having been very large. Dr. Bishop has made much money out of eredulous people hereabout, and she had a habit of carrying large sums of money on her person, thinking that it was safest there. On Sunday evening she and her husband were going out thinking that it was safest there. On Sunday evoning she and her husband were going out to make calls. Dr. Bishop had $2.000 in bills, and her husband induced her to leave it home. She locked it in a bursau drawer. When they returned home the house had been robued. Df. Bishop's $2.000 were gone, besides several hundred dollars worth of sliverware. The dector did not go into a trance and reveal to herself or her husband where the stelen property was, as she had been dolng in consideration of large fees for other pecole for years, but rushed excitedly to Police Headquarters and nut the case in charge of the Chief of Police. He has not succeeded in getting track of the thlevesyet, and in the mean time people are wondering why Dr. Bishop has not turned her supernatural gifts to account in her own case.

RAY OFF WITH $4,500.

A Highway Robber in St. Louis Caught Af-ter as Exciting Chase.

Jennings of the St. Louis Railway Company boarded a Broadway car at 10:30 o'clock this morning on his way to the car shops in South St. Louis to pay off the employees. He carried in his hand a small valise containing $4.500 in currency. At the same time George McKinzio currency. At the same time George McKinzie entered the car and took a seat bestde Mr. Jounings. They rode thus side by side for over five miles, when McKinzie suddenly sprang up, grasped the valiau, which he tore violently from Paymuster Jonnings's hands, rushed through the car, and sprang off.
Conductor Maily saw the daring robbery and gave hot chase, giving the alarm as he ran. The robber duried up an alley and was followed by Conductor Maily and others.
In the alley Archibald Brunor saw the robber coming toward him and intercepted his flight. McKinzie drouped the satchel. draw a knife, and rushed at Bruner, cutting him in the vide. Then he fled swiftly, but was captured at insta to Broadway, near Arsenal street.

It has been known for many years that there are soveral hundred Nihilists in Williamsburgh. It is said that Mrs. Boseninsky was put to death by women because of information she alleged to have sent from time to time to her parents and friends in Russia and which has nut relatives of so-called Williamsburgh Nihilists in Russia to a great deal of trouble with the Government. This is the story. The police deny that they are working on any such theory.

Long Island City Must Provide Its Own

Henry Rogers was taken from I ong Island City on Monday to the hospital on North Broth-Island suffering with small-pox. The Health Board yesterday notified the Long Health Board yesterday notified the Long Island City outhorities that in future they must find some other quarters for their sick. In a letter signed by Secretary Lommons Clark the Board of Health says: "Twenty-four cases of small-nex have been found in this city fince Jan. 1. There is accommodation at the hospital for only sixty patients, and more beds cannot be used without encreaching on the spaces set apart for searlet fever patients. "The Long Island City authorities will into ten days to procure other accommodation. The action was taken at the instance of Drs. Cyrus Edson and J. D. Bryant.

The Executive Committee of Twenty-four met at Tammany Hall yesterday afternoon and de-cided to visit Albane, with as many of the Tammany men as possible, on Saturday, Feb. 20. They will leave on a special train of thirty cars from the Grand Contral Station, and re-turn on Monday morning. SEVATOR HILL IN BROOKLYN.

A Decimention of the Poets by Him Accepted in Lieu of Testimony. The Circuit Court in Brooklyn was packed with a big audience and a couple of scores of reporters yesterday morning in anticipation of the appearance of Senator Hill as a witness In the proceedings begun by the Republican managers to have County Clerk Storm Emans of Dutchess county punished for contempt of court in connection with the forwarding of the amended, or Denne, returns from the Fif-feenth Senate district to Albany. Interest in the controversy itself had become almost exhausted, but the fact that Senator Hill had been subprensed by Col. George Bliss and had given assurances that he would be present was enough to crowd the court room.

The numerous lawyers engaged in the case were all on hand at 11 o'clock, when Judge Culien took his seat on the bench, but it was nearly 12 o'clock when the case was begun. During the delay a conference had taken piace between Senator Hill, Col. Bliss, and Delos McCurdy, counsel for Emans, in District Attorney Ridgway's office, and it resulted in an agreement relieving Senator Hill from appearing as a witness, much to the disappointment of the large audience. At the close of the conference Col. Bliss returned to the court and made this announcement:

"Before going on, your Honor, I wish to say that we have come to an arrangement as to the admission of facts. Senator Hill was subpernaed and has obeyed. He is, however, excoolingly auxious to keep another engagement. In a conversation with him he has stated these facts: On Dec. 22, at 7 c'clock in the morning. Mr. Emans came to his house and said that under the order of the Court he had forwarded the election returns. Senator Hill thinks that Mr. Emans said that he knew when he posted the returns that there was an order in existence staying the proceedings, but it had not been served, and he had come to Albany to see what could be done. Gov. Hill said that the best thing was for him to see Deputy Attorney-General Maynard, as he was the counsel of the State Board of Cantassers, and the members of the Board of Cantassers, and the had better do as Mr. Maynard advised. Gov. Hill knew nothing more until to clock, when he wont to the Exceutive department, and was informed by Messonger Lambourne that he had delivered an envelope to Mr. Emans. Gov. Hill said it was all right, and Senator itll says it was not an unusual thing for a letter to be so delivered.

Mr. McChriy acquiesced in the cogrectness of Col. Bliss's statement. Counsel for Mr. Emans moved to dismiss the proceedings on the ground of want of jurisdiction and on several technical points.

Judge Cullen said that he was not prepared to say that the objections were not well founded, but thought that the case had better proceed, and that the objections could be raised at the close.

When air. Emans had been called to the stand, District Attorney Ridgway of Kings connty, one of the counsel, objected to his being sworn, on the ground that he could not be made to eriminate himself.

Judge Cullen reserved this question also to the close of the proceedings. the morning. Mr. Emans came to his house

Judge Cullen reserved this question also to the close of the proceedings.
James W. Hinckley of the Poughkeepsie News Press testified that he met Mr. Emans on the evening of Doc. 22 and told him that he had better advice with his rounsel as to sending the returns.

Col. Bliss handed in some affidavita and other unimportant testimony, and the deconary method of the prosecution, at considerable length, and Mr. McCurdy, for Mr. Emans, for a few minutes. Counsel were directed to submit briefs before Enturday. Judge Cullen will probably not hand down a decision for a week or more.

support briefs before Saturday. Judge Callen will probably not hand down a decision for a week or more.

Senator Hill spent a couple of hours in Brooklyn before his return to New York, but at his request no formal reception was arranged. He was taken by Hugh McLaughlin to his house in Romsen street, where he had luncheon with Mr. McLaughlin and his family and a few close political friends of the Democratic leader. Afterward Senator Hill west over to the City Hall, and after a chat with Mayor Boody he was closeted for half an hour with Corporation Counsel Jonks. On his departure from the Hall with Mr. Jenks, Senator Hill was informed by one of the renorters that Judge Chilen had decided not to allow Mr. Emnns to be examined, and to this he remarked:

"That's good law, isn't it?"

Another reporter said: "You don't seem to be disturbed, Senator, by the opponents of the mildwinter Convention?" The Senator replied, with a smile:

"Oh. Iteld the General here from the reporters."

midwinter Convention? The Senate replication with a smile;
"Oh. no. I told the General here [pointing to Mr. Jenks] they have all the brass bands and the mass meetings and I am getting the delegates."
The Senator spent a short time at the Brock-lyn Club before his return to New York.
Benator Hill returned to Albany last evening.

WHITE DELEGATES ONLY.

An Administration Order Whigh Dinns ranges Republican Plans in Coorgia. ATLANTA, Feb. 10.-There is sorrow in the ranks of the negro politicians of Georgia, and the white officeholders as well as their coloras brothren are saying unpleasant things about President Harrison. The dissatisfaction is the result of the sudden visit here of Mr. Porter. Minister to Italy, and of R R. Shields of In dianapolis, both confidential friends and advisers of the President. They came estensibl on a mere social visit, but really, it is said, to de liver an edict from Benjamin Harrison. It was to this effect: There must be no Federal officeholders in the Minneapolis Convention. The delegates must be business men, and, moreover, they must be white men. Of the President's wishes in this respect. Mr. Shields is quoted as saying: "He does not want a single quotes as saying: He does not want a single man appointed as a delegate that holds any Government position, or that is in any way under obligations to the Administration. Of course, the President expects his appointees to see to it that a solid Harrison delegation is sent to the Convention, but he wants them selected from among white business men. This same request will be made in other southern States. If Hr. Harrison gets the nomination, he wants to be able to say in the campaign that he was nominated by the puople, and not by his officeholders."

All this was very sad nows to the officeholders, and especially sad was it to the brothers in black. It knocks them out completely. It means that the negro workers will have no chance at all. The visions of the "harlis" of they Alger or other candidates vanish, and there is sorrowing among the faithful. The delegates had alroady practically been chosen. It had been fixed that Marshal Buck and the other officeholders should be the mon to go to Minneapolis. Buck was to have hended the delegation-at-large. The other three stated candidates were officeholders, and all the candidates from this district were Government employees. Several leading Republicans were asked about the matter, but beyond the admission that the message had been received would say nothing. When asked if the request would be adhered to or not, they replied that it would be considered. man appointed as a delegate that holds any

REVIVAL AGAINST KIRMESS.

Counter Attractions in Kingston with the Worldly One the More Prospersus, KINGSTON, Feb. 10.-The kirmess which has seen in progress at the Academy of Music since Monday, despite the ministers' protest alleging that it would be immodest and immoral, is a success socially and financially. The leading society and church people are in daily attendance. Some of the clergy have also been present and witnessed the national dances of all countries, in which scores of dances of all countries, in which scores of young women and men take part. Finding that the protest had little weight with the Four Hundred who had the kirmoss in charge, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to a most worthy cause, the hospital fund, a series of revivals were gotten up to create religious ferrors and draw attention from the kirmess. An exhorternamed Stockdale has been conducting the meetings, which are being high every afternoon and evening in the St. James Methodist Church, and a special choir of fifty voices has been organized.

The liev. W. F. Anderson, who started the protest against the kirmess, is pastor of this church. The revival meetings are being largely attended and many conversions reported. It is a spirited rivalry between Church and kirmess, with the latter unpermost. It is rumored that several church members who have attended the entertainment and others who are taking part will soon be called to account by the councils of the churches to which they belong. The matter is also to be made a subject for discussion at the coming Methodist Conference in New York city.

Threw a Blazing Lama Into the Bumb

The five-story double flat 238 West 134th street was on fire at G o'clock last evening. The top floor was occupied by Mrs. Barah Kealer and her sister-in-law, Miss Eugenia Kealer The oil in a kerosene lamp caught fire and flashed up in a broad sheet of flame. Miss Kealer screamed, flung the lamp into the dumb water shaft and lainted. The lamp crashed, and in an instant the shaft was filled with flames, which spread to the fourth and flith fleers. Mrs. Kealer dragged ner sisterin-law into the hallway and two strangers carried her across the street. When the firemental got the fire under control the two upper floors had been pretty well burned out. While the firemen were still at work an alarm was rung for a fire at 316 West 134th street, a block and a half distant. The building is a five-story double tonement, occupied by thirteen families. The firemen found paper and a mattress blazing in the cellar. The lire was confined to the cellar. finshed up in a broad sheet of flame. Miss

GREAT MASS MEETING AT COOPER UNION ON THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11TH,

TO PROTEST AGAINST The "Freeze-out" Convention

Doors Open at 7:45 P. M.

THE CALL

WHIRMAR the Demogratic State Convention for the election of delegates to the Democratic National Convention has been balled to meet on the 27d day of February next, on only four weeks' notice, although the National Convention is not to meet until the 21st day of Juny.

AND WHEREAR the outcome of a Convention selected in midwinter, upon so short a call, cannot be fatry and truly representative of the Beaucarsia sentiment of the State, and would inevitably deltar the masses of the Democratic voters of the State of New York from the voice to which they are justicy entitled in the selection of the State of President and Vice President and the framing of the party's platform:

AND WHEREAR the action of the State Committee is not only undemocratic, but unprecedented in the nietry of the party in this State;

THE UNDRESIGNED invite their follow Democrats who sympathine with their views to meet at Cooper Plaisa, in this city, on Yeb, 11, 1992, at 8 o clock, to compider and dedide upon the necessary measures to secure the best interests of the Democratic party.

Br. Oward Girchedorfer will open the meeting: Mr. Frederic R. Condert will preside. Speeches will be made by Br. Ottandorfer, Mr., Coudert, Mr., John G. Milburn of Brie, Congressman Charles Tracey of Albany, Rr. W. A. Berret of Conomings, Mr. A. Frank Jenks of Chautaqua, Mr. Charles is Fairchild, Nr. E. Ellery Anderson, Mr. James Frederic R. Condert.
